In the abstract:

Please amend the abstract to read as provided on a separate page attached hereto and as provided below:

Abstract

To synchronize the operations of a door fitted with a door unlatching device to rotate a latch handle, a door operator to move the door from the closed position to the open position, and an assist to apply additional force to move the door out of the door frame to the ajar position, a microprocessor receives input from all three devices and unifies the timing of the movements of the components to unlatch and open the door.